How We Use and Disclose Health Care Information

The following categories describe different ways that Dekalb Pediatric Center uses and discloses your children's health information. For each category we will explain what we mean and give an example.

1. For Treatment: Our practice may use and disclose information about you or your children to ensure that they receive necessary medical treatment and services. For example, we might use this information in order to write or call in a prescription for you. Many of the people who work for our practice, including, but not limited to, our doctors and nurses, may use or disclose your information in order to treat you or to assist others in your treatment. Additionally, we may disclose your information to other health care providers for purposes related to your treatment.

2. For Payment: Our practice may use and disclose your personal information in order to bill and collect payment for the services and items you may receive from us. For example, bills and claims sent for services rendered include information that identifies you, as well as your children's diagnoses and treatments. We may contact your health insurer to certify that you are eligible for benefits, and we may provide your insurer with details regarding your treatment to determine if your insurer will cover, or pay for, your treatment. We may disclose your personal information to other health care providers and entities to assist in their billing and collection efforts.

3. For Health Care Operations: Our practice may use and disclose information about you or your children to operate our business. For example, this information may be used to assess and monitor quality of care you received from us, or to conduct cost-management and business planning activities for our practice.

5. For Health Oversight Activities: We may disclose your personal information to a health oversight agency for activities required by law. This can include, for example, investigations, inspections, audits, surveys, licensure and disciplinary actions; or other activities necessary for the government to monitor government programs, compliance with civil rights laws and the health care system in general.

6. Release of Information to Family/Friends: Our practice may release your personal information to a friend or family member that is involved in your care, or who assists in taking care of your child. For example, a parent or guardian may ask that a babysitter take their child to our office for treatment of a cold. In this example, the babysitter may have access to this child's medical information.

7. For Public Health Risks: Our practice may disclose your personal information to public health authorities that are authorized by law to collect information for various purposes. Examples include: maintaining vital records, such as births and deaths, reporting child abuse or neglect, preventing or controlling disease, injury or disability, notifying a person regarding potential exposure to a communicable disease, notifying a person regarding a potential risk for spreading or contracting a disease or condition, and reporting reactions to drugs or problems with products or devices.

8. For Research: Our practice may disclose information about your child for a research project that has been approved by a review board. The review board must review the research project and its rules to ensure the privacy of your information. In all other cases we would obtain your written authorization.
